Enjoy a quick and easy migration

You've heard about all of the great advantages of Windows 10, but might be concerned that a migration will cause major disruption and headaches for your business. It's true that certain changes will present a number of challenges for companies: both Windows applications and web applications need to be validated to run in the new environment; the impact on security and system management strategies must be assessed; and implications on mobile devices should be considered.

That's why HP has developed the Assessment and Strategy Service for Windows 10. As part of this service, we'll collect the required information about your hardware and applications, as well as key analysis information around device and application landscape. Then, HP or authorised service providers will produce a detailed assessment and strategy report that covers information about your current environment and offers a recommended strategy for adopting Windows 10 with the least possible disruption to your business.

Clear communication and expectations

Prior to service delivery, we'll meet with your key stakeholders to agree upon the service, scope, priorities, and timelines of your migration.

Efficient collection of key information

In order to collect and consolidate required device, application, user, and location information, we'll deploy software tools to gather information. For larger deployments, a representative sample from key departments, functions, and locations will be chosen.
